Free. Barbara Yonts, Anchor of 'Today' Show, Dies at 82 Barbara Yonts, the woman who held the morning news slot for more than 30 years on NBC's Today show, died Friday, her office said. She was 82. Yonts, who had been working at the show since 1972, died at a hospital in Prescott Valley, Arizona, where she was being treated for complications from pulmonary disease, the show said in a statement. Her death came a few months after her grandson James Meek, a Phoenix TV reporter and cameraman, was killed while covering a fire at an apartment complex. Meek, 22, had been working with Yonts, who with her daughter she made frequent appearances on local news programs to talk about child abuse prevention and child loss. "Barbara's been touched by such a powerful force of child loss and she's been able to do something, I don't know how, to give back to those communities," Meek said in a news conference after the Jan. 27 fire in Phoenix
