"La Bella Vita" is a 1990 song by Renato Zero. The song was recorded by Renato Zero, being his first #1 single in Italy and giving him more fame in Europe. This song is the third part of the "Paese-Delitto" Trilogy. Renato Zero is the stage name of Renato Fiacchini (born September 30, 1950), an Italian singer-songwriter and showman. Renato Fiacchini was born in Rome in 1970. CITIZENSHIP IS BASED ON IDENTITY
CITIZENSHIP IS BASED ON IDENTITY As you move around your life, I wonder how much of what you consider yourself to be comes from your identity. Your DNA, your health, your looks and abilities, your profession, your family, your friends, your religion, your politics, and on and on. In the end, what you think of yourself will dictate how you perceive yourself, and how you interact with the world. It will also determine how others perceive you and, thus, how you feel about yourself. Why do we place such an emphasis on identity? We use identity to define who we are and who we should be. If you don't have an identity, it's very difficult to lead a fulfilled and productive life. For most of us, identity comes with age; it's what we develop by the time we are about 25. But identity is not, and can never be, static. If we can grasp that and accept it, we'll be able to break through barriers to lead a better life. If we know who we are, we can put ourselves in other people's shoes and feel empathy and understanding. We can adjust our behavior and make things easier for others. In addition, we can do this because we respect ourselves. We respect our own feelings, our own beliefs, our own ideas and opinions. When we respect others, we respect ourselves. But identity is not static and it doesn't last forever. It's changing all the time. Identity is the pattern you create out of who you are, and what you become. Identity, in and of itself, is never changing, only the things you become are changing. This presents a problem. You have to know who you are because to change who you are, you need to know who you are. 4be0debe42
