I've set up an Apache server with ServerAlias and a load balancer in front of it. Both machines have webmin installed on them. On the server, I have configured this HSTS header on the server: header_invalidate on; header_max-age 200; header_strict-transport-security max-age=15; on the load balancer, I have a very similar HSTS header: header_invalidate on; header_max-age 200; header_strict-transport-security max-age=15; It seems that I need to let my load balancer get updated, somehow. It looks like webmin will check it's local header first, and if that's not there, then it falls back to Httpd's HSTS header. Is there any way to tell webmin to check the HSTS header on my load balancer? A: Just run /usr/local/sbin/dns_cache flush which clears the local DNS cache. I hope it works for you.
