Download Ayas Locker 3.0Q: Spring Single @Transactional for all services I have 2 classes that I want to transactionally unit tested. I want to make sure that if an exception was thrown in either of these classes that I can rollback the transaction. Is there a way that I can force Spring to create a single transaction for all services within a package? I can see what's being done with the `org.springframework.test.context.transaction.TransactionalTestExecutionListener`, but that won't work as I don't have a `TransactionManager` bean and I don't want to have to use that. The main reason I want this is so I can have a `@Transactional` method in one of the classes that uses services from both of these classes and if something goes wrong, rollback the whole transaction and don't have any impact on the other service classes.

A: I guess this is the way to go then: Define a `TransactionalTestExecutionListener` Configure that listener, using `transactionManager`, to use a fake/incomplete transaction manager By "fake", I mean that you use a `Mock` as the `TransactionManager`. See this answer for details: Spring AOP @Transactional not working with H2 in-memory db I hope it helps!

A: Not
