Password: File: With around 27 per cent growth year-over-year, India's real estate market registered significant growth in the first half of 2017. Though the demand for housing continues to be high, sellers are finding it more challenging to find buyers due to high interest rates. With the recent slowdown in the economy and unstable government policies, it is going to be a tough period for the industry. After June 2016, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) reduced key policy rates by 135 basis points to 4.5 per cent, bringing down the repo rate by 25 basis points to 5.75 per cent and the reverse repo rate by 125 basis points to 4.5 per cent. This led to a significant increase in the base rate of home loans across the country. Declining interest rates don't solve the primary problem The move by the RBI, which is the first ever in India's banking history, was not well received by the industry, with home loan rates increasing by 8.3 per cent to 7.8 per cent in July, and 6.3 per cent in August. Although the base rate has gone down, the hike was small enough to bring down the overall rate. For most buyers, this slight reduction is not enough, as they want home loans at a rate lower than the available rate on the market. Indian banks are not able to effectively meet this demand, and thus find it difficult to reduce the interest rates further. The RBI's reduction in base rate has not helped in this regard, as the government does not have the ability to take quick and effective measures to address the underlying problem. Thus, the only way out is the growth of housing demand, which can only be achieved through well-thought-out, well-executed infrastructure development, combined with several measures to address India's skyrocketing home loans. 1. Cash-rich NRIs purchase property The biggest driver of home demand is the demand of people with enough cash to buy a house in today's market. This is because the housing market in India is one of the most expensive markets in the world. The cost of property in the major cities has increased three-fold in the last three years. Due to the demand for quality housing and the requirement for cash, the demand for housing in cities like Mumbai, Delhi, Bengaluru, Chennai, Kolkata and Hyderabad is growing. NRIs with cash have been buying property in these cities since 77a5ca646e
