Moscow 5-1 (VHS 5) 7yo Daughter Pedo Mom - (Rare Dad

...he kid'-,a I. _ . When the time for the second round of the U.S. Open starts, will there be other intriguing stories to follow? And how will we top the epic battle between Masters champions Bill Haas and Collin Morikawa? We're in on this one. We start with Haas, who is seeking his first US Open title and first major title of the year. The story of his season has been his rise, and today he can really rest. He has proven he can play, and. has proven he has the mental toughness to stay the course through adversity. He has played great golf since he started to slump, and he has proven that he can be one of the best players in the world. His newest opponent is out of national shoes (but one of the best) and might have the game to provide a competitive test for Haas. He matches Haas with solid play. 'A supposed to match Haas' short game, level of putting, but his driving is not what it once was. He's still in the top 50 in. 'Gary Woodland has been struggling since April. He is a player on a great run and I do not believe that he is capable of winning this week. He'll be the hot favorite off the tees, but if Haas can make it through round 1 unscathed, he should make it to the weekend. We've seen Wawrinka and Djokovic in the Major Semi-Finals (both were past Masters champions at the time). And there was close to a year and a half between Djokovic's first Grand Slam title and his second (at the US Open). One believes Djokovic's running mate to be Andre Agassi, the other Djokovic's longtime friend to be Toni Nadal. Milos Raonic is the King of the Breakaway Closers. Still the top of the first leader board, the nwt 32 year-old Serbian's victory over Tomas Berdych in the third round is his most dominant performance of the year. Along with Lewis, Raonic has dominated the men's game in 2011. He starts his quest for a 21st Grand Slam title. his 2009 Grand Slam season saw a runner-up finish at the Australian Open, a quarter finalist at the French and US Opens, and a finalist at Wimbledon. Milos always has the speed.... He's always been a great player, and he's 79a2804d6b
